

OFFICIAL UC ALUMNI NEWSLETTER / December 2025 / VOLUME VI ISSUE XII

We have been enjoying another great Fall semester at UC!

Some culminating events include two annual student traditions. One is the Holiday Dinner featuring crab legs, prime rib, turkey, and all of the fixings – we are still trying to determine the exact ratio of crab legs to college students, but early estimates indicate “as many as humanly possible.”

Another to kick off final exam week is Midnight Breakfast, where research continues to explore if pancakes at 11:59 pm somehow taste better than pancakes at noon. And of course our Commencement Ceremony on Saturday December 13th. West Virginia State Treasurer Larry Pack joined us to share guidance with graduates based on his entrepreneurial, business, and public service successes.

Other recent notable milestones include senior business and political science double-major Maliah McCann-Coles being named a Rhodes Scholarship finalist, our first since 2012. Maliah and classmate Abbi Roberts have been awarded 2026 Herndon Fellowships, a highly competitive program in which ten undergraduate students across colleges in West Virginia are selected annually to participate in the 60-day legislative session. Abbi and Maliah will be assigned to assist a legislator from the West Virginia Senate or House of Delegates. And our Fall athletic teams achieved great success, including NCAA post-season tournament appearances for men's and women's cross country, men's and women's golf, women's volleyball, and men's soccer.

In addition to the outstanding work of our faculty and coaches, everyone throughout the university plays a role in our students' accomplishments. The daily work of our exceptional Athletics, Campus Safety, Communications & Marketing, Facilities, Food Service, Information Technology, Student Life, and Student Solutions teams truly makes UC a special place to study, work, and live!

In harmony with the holiday season, this is a time for gratitude. Our students are grateful for their UC experiences. Their families are grateful for us assisting their loved ones and helping them pursue their dreams. And we are grateful for students' and families' confidence and trust in UC to help them achieve their personal and professional goals.

As Voltaire said, "Appreciation is a wonderful thing. It makes what is excellent in others belong to us as well." And in the spirit of the upcoming holiday season, "Feeling gratitude and not expressing it is like wrapping a present and not giving it," from William Arthur Ward. If gratitude were a final exam, UC alumni and friends would be earning straight A's — and yes, we would happily curve the grade if needed!

We appreciate all of the ways you support UC. Our University would not be so successful without your assistance!

I hope that you enjoy a healthy, safe, and fun holiday season with your families and friends. May all your lights untangle, your travels be smooth, and your leftovers still taste amazing on day three!

Best regards,

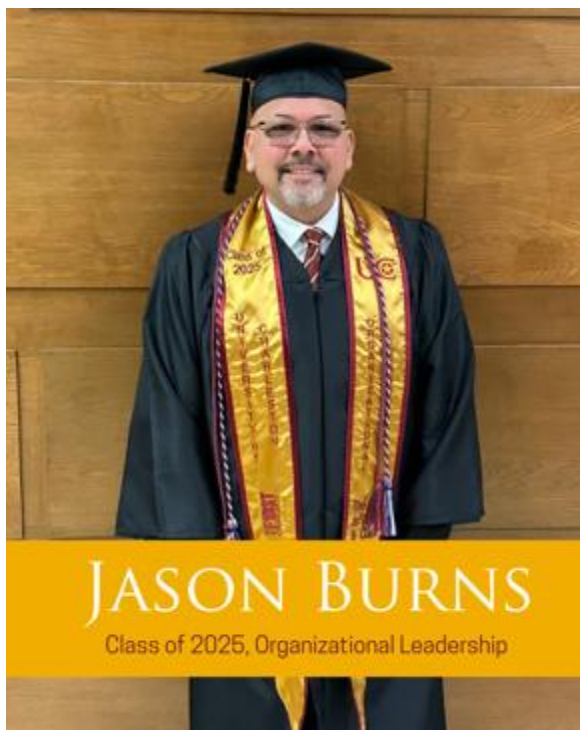

Marty

Congratulations to the class of 2025 and welcome to the alumni community! Winter commencement was a special time of celebration as 125 of the 475 graduates were in Charleston to take part in the ceremony. Each graduate has a unique UC story and we hope you enjoy just one of those shared below.

From Unfinished Business to Unstoppable Purpose

Jason Burns had built a successful consulting career within the Department of Defense, working with sophisticated technology and cloud-development programs. Yet something remained unsettled.

“I always wanted my degree,” he said. “In my world, if you understand technology and cloud development, you’re good. But it always bothered me that I didn’t have that credential. I was training supervisors who were advancing above me simply because they had a degree and I didn’t.”

Jason’s strong background in technology gave him opportunities to lead large teams of employees so when it was time to claim a major, he wanted to deepen his leadership skills. His search for an Organizational Leadership program five years ago led him to the University of Charleston.

After exploring the curriculum, he reached out to Dr. Dale Ratzlaff, whose mentorship quickly solidified Jason’s decision.

“He showed me it’s not just about education; it’s about the people. He introduced me to UC’s culture and purpose-driven approach. After speaking with him, I was sold.”

ALUMNI

SPOTLIGHT

Proud to say I am a UC Graduate.

My name is Greg McCollam and I graduated from UC in 1980.

In 1976, I was awarded a scholarship as an incoming freshman by Athletic Director Rich Meckfessel to work as the school's Sports Information Director during my undergraduate years.

Upon graduation as an English major with a Mass Communications minor, I was hired by the Indiana Pacers of the NBA, and two years later joined the Cincinnati Reds. After four years there I left the Reds to go into promotional sales to sports teams all across the country.

During those years, I completed a three-year program for bi-vocational ministry through the American Baptist Churches of Ohio and eventually received my ordination while serving as pastor of Walnut Hills Baptist Church for over thirteen years.

I am retired now but keep busy by writing (I currently have four books available on Amazon, including my newest one which is a children's Christmas story entitled, "Sedgwick, Santa's Secret Mouse/Why Santa Doesn't Need a Chimney" check them out on Amazon.

I also produce a weekly podcast ("Where's God? Finding Him in the Small Stuff") and I post regularly on a blog as well (straightouttathebook.blogspot.com).

My son Jordan is also a proud UC graduate, class of 2012. He was recruited to play for the UC men's soccer team the year after the program went 0-17.

Athletics

CORNER

Golden Eagle Athletics Highlights:

Women's Volleyball

The University of Charleston women's volleyball team capped off a historic season by claiming the Mountain East Conference Championship, defeating West Virginia State in four sets in the MEC title match. The Golden Eagles showcased their most complete performance of the year, applying relentless pressure and executing calmly in key moments to secure the victory and earn an automatic bid to the NCAA Atlantic Regional Tournament.

Charleston's postseason run concluded in the NCAA Atlantic Regional Quarterfinal, where the Golden Eagles fell to East Stroudsburg at the Highmark Events Center. UC closes the 2025 season with a 23–13 overall record, an 11–4 mark in MEC play, and the program's 2025 MEC Championship, along with multiple individual conference honors—marking one of the strongest seasons in recent program history.

Track & Field

The University of Charleston track and field teams opened the indoor season with strong showings across two meets. The distance runners competed Friday at the Grand Valley State Holiday Open, while the rest of the roster made its season debut Saturday at the Marshall Holiday Open.

Across both competitions, Golden Eagles athletes recorded several top finishes and competitive marks, signaling early-season promise as the indoor campaign begins. UC will return to action after the new year at the Mondo College Invitational.

Basketball

Both Golden Eagle basketball programs continue their seasons as more conference play approaches. The men's basketball team currently holds a 4–5 record and will look to build momentum when it returns to the court on December 18 at Frostburg State.

The women's basketball team enters the matchup with a 5–4 record, aiming to secure another win as they also face Frostburg State on December 18.
